RENO AFTER LANGTRY.

She Sits Down on Mr. Powning.

The Reno papers are already beginning to talk over the passage through that city of the English beauty. It is now an open secret that for some months past a correspondence has been passing between Mr. Powning and Mrs. Langtry, relative to the subject of her future location there. Mr. Powning's letter was as follows:

MRS. LANGTRY—Dear Madam: Hearing that you intend locating in America, I write to suggest Reno as the most eligible spot in the United States for your permanent abode. The climate of the city is the most salubrious in the world and specially adapted to heightening the beauties of the complexion. I am of the opinion that after six months sojourn in Reno, should you return to England, your own husband would not know you. We also have a thriving lunatic asylum, all through a bill I passed in the Legislature, and our bridge over the Truckee river is second to none in the State. To give you some idea of the effects of the climate, I inclose a photograph of myself taken yesterday and one taken several years ago, when I first came to the city. I can also assure you that should you live here the same length of time your beauty will increase in like ratio. Respectfully, Christopher Columbus Powning.

A few days ago Mr. Powning received a delicately rose colored brass edged note from New York, as follows:

MR. POWNING—Dear Sir: I think you have deceived me. Your picture taken recently is my beau ideal of the languishing type of American male beauty, transcendent in its perfection and eminently successful in its reaching after the pure, the beautiful and the true. The other picture, however, which you allege represents you in your early stages of development, I have ascertained is not yourself at all, but a profile view of R. L. Fulton, of the Gazette, a singularly homely man, who called upon me yesterday just as I opened your letter. I cannot think of locating in a town which produces such bad, designing men. Yours, etc. LILY LANGTRY.

How the Boys Work It.

Once upon a time Senator Fair came up from San Francisco, having a personal suite composed of Harry Rosener, Dick Dey and others, and they all went to breakfast at Chamberlain's, of course. Breakfast over, each one, except the millionaire, nearly broke his neck to get out to the bar to pay the bill. When the Senator asked "How much?" the attendant said: "All paid for, Mr. Fair." In his long drawn tone Uncle Jimmy remarked: "These boys have got lots of money, haven't they?" They compliment the old man by paying a few small traveling bills, and then hit him for a check, to balance things.—Gazette.

The latest, however, is Fair's opinion of the State election: While standing on the steps of the depot a Carson man asked him if he took much interest in the recent election.

"Yes, I gave the boys a few dollars to make the fight, but I guess the ——— froze to every cent of it."

Just at present Fair is pretty uneasy and in constant fear of being thrashed or killed. It is alleged that there are men on the Comstock who have been ruined by his treachery who vow that they will take his life. He never feels at all safe except in Washington and thinks that he will be "cooked" in San Francisco. He is represented as almost crazed with fear and is haunted by a well founded dread of everybody.

Married.

In Carson, November 24th, by Rev. W. C. Gray, W. J. Reifsnycer to Miss E. J. Mills, both of Virginia City.

Our Virginia Subscribers.

The APPEAL enjoys quite a large subscription in Virginia City, and most of the leading politicians and miners of the Comstock take the paper regularly but pay for it irregularly. During the present month several hundred dollars is due the APPEAL in that section and we want everybody to settle up without any distinction to race, color or religious proclivities. Our Comstock subscribers are all gentlemen of the old school, and personally we love many of them as we would brothers, but just at present we had much rather get their checks for back subscription than have any of them come and take breakfast and dinner with us. We like to have them come down to Carson and incidentally remark that the APPEAL is considered by them the only paper in the West which comes up to their idea of a journal, but if they would lay down a $10 piece and then say that they look upon this journal as the most mercenary, venal, corrupt, badly edited, ignorant, contemptible sack-hunting sheet in the State we would not feel so unhappy because candor is always appreciated in this office when accompanied with financial where withal. These easy going Comstockers who live in purple and merino underwear all the year round little imagine the bitter pangs it costs us to write the lines or to realize that they are needed. We would not wittingly crush the laggard tumble-bug that crosses our path or set foot upon angle worm save in kindness and the trout season, but we want every recalcitrant Comstock subscriber, whose year is up this bracing month of November, to forward the amount due without making us spend $135 with Jim Stephens for attorney fees—collecting our back balances, as we need the money right bad to pull this town through the next Legislative session.

At the Railroad Shops.

There is considerable activity now at the V. & T. machine shops, and more hands are employed than have been for several months. The Merrimac has just been finished and is ready for the road. It is a 40-ton engine of the Mogul pattern, with six connected driving wheels, and constructed for the heaviest work. Esmeralda No. 4 is undergoing repairs, that is, having its insides taken out and its running gear all made over. The Churchill, a narrow-gauge engine from the C. & C., is also in the stocks with its bare skeleton hoisted up so as the mechanics can get at it. The narrow-gauge engines are run on a flat-car at the Mound House provided with a narrow track and run into the engine house from the flat car. Engine No. 5, the Carson, has been rebuilt. It is as clean as a new needle, and weighs 35 tons.

Laid Out.

Yesterday afternoon, while some young men were unloading wood in the rear of Benton's stable, a drunken Indian came up flourishing a knife and saying that he wanted blood. He sprang upon one of the young men and keeled him over, and was about to disembowel him when Frank Woodward, grasping a stake, dealt the Indian a blow alongside of the head which knocked him senseless. He gave a few convulsive kicks and then straightened out as if dead. A crowd collected to see what was going on, when suddenly the reconstructed savage rose to a sitting posture and began to laugh uproariously at the humor of the situation. He was finally taken home by his friends.

Last Night's Entertainment.

Mrs. Howe's benefit at the Opera House last evening was attended by a large audience. The musical and literary programme, which was arranged with excellent care and taste, was presented in a most attractive form to an attentive and pleased audience. The APPEAL goes to press at an hour which prevents an extended or individual mention of the cast. They were all applauded in a most energetic way, and the readings of the beneficiary were received with special favor. The affair was a success financially, and deserved to be, as some slight return for the gratuitous services so often rendered by Mrs. Howe for others. A novelty of the entertainment was the drill of the Fan Brigade, consisting of ten handsome young ladies, who went through their evolutions with as much precision as the Carson Guard, and were enthusiastically applauded.

Dramatic.

The shows heading this way are as follows: Leavitt's All Star Specialty Company, the Harrisons, Minnie Palmer in "My Sweetheart," Roland Reed in "Cheek," Tony Pastor's Specialty Company, the Minnie Madden Dramatic Company, the Kate Putnam Company, and it is not improbable that Madam Modjeska will be in Carson before Spring.

Bad Movement.

Yesterday a man who visited the ruins of Mr. Tobey's house found a clock, the machinery of which had been all melted together. He held up the affair and remarked, "This movement will never go again." "No," said a bystander, "too much of a Fusion movement," and the Dolly Vardens stole sadly out of the yard.

IN BRIEF.

We are now getting our Indian Summer.

Jake Linn is a candidate for the Penitentiary Wardenship.

Hall & Meder will hold a bon bon party at the Opera House this evening.

There will be turkey shooting at the Warm Springs on Sunday afternoon.

Senator Brumsey, of Storey, is spoken of as President pro tem. of the Senate. He is decidedly the best man named so far.

An Italian from Nye county was brought in by Sheriff O'Neill and taken to the Penitentiary where he is sentenced for one year.

The members of the A. O. U. W. are actively pushing preparations for their ball, and tickets are selling rapidly. Hall & Meder will furnish the music.

Frederick Boegle, of Virginia City, has filed a petition in insolvency. Liabilities, $17,816; assets, $14,000, consisting of stock in stores in San Francisco and Virginia City.

About a thousand school boys visit the ruins of Tobey's house daily and poke over the ashes for charred boots, pieces of brass and old door locks, expecting miraculously to fall upon a tiara of diamonds or $1,000 melted in a lamp.

There was a regular meeting of the School Board yesterday. Present Messrs. Davis, Kelly and Webb. The monthly salaries of the teachers were allowed together with some bills for labor. No other business of importance was transacted.

Yesterday Hank Monk captured a curious animal just this side of the Voltaire mine. It was about the size of a woodchuck with curious rings running around its body. It has a tail like a rat and is quite docile and frisky. Mr. Monk gave it to J. E. Dealy and it is now a pet at the Magnolia Saloon.
